Introduction and Terminology

What is the Code of Ethics and Behaviour?

The England Hockey (EH) Code of Ethics and Behaviour exists to protect everyone within the game and outlines the behaviour expected from all people within the Hockey Family in England.

As the National Governing Body, EH is responsible for setting the standards and values that apply at every level. This Code encapsulates all of the sporting, moral and ethical principles that hockey represents.

We think of hockey as a sport for all. A family sport packed with passion, speed and respect. One that anyone can enjoy however they choose to participate – as a player, umpire, official, volunteer or a parent supporting on the sidelines. However you choose to be involved in the game, you have a right to do it with enjoyment.

Does the Code apply to me?

Yes! If you are involved at any level in the game, then the Code applies to you.

Although we are responsible for setting the standards, everyone involved in hockey has a responsibility to promote the sport, making sure that there is equal access and opportunity for all and that fairness and respect is upheld.

This Code allows EH to uphold the values that we all believe in as a sport and gives us a mechanism to deal with any breaches with a consistent approach.

What is the purpose of the Code?

By sharing this code across the sport, we believe that we can uphold the highest standards of integrity and ensure that the reputation of the sport is – and remains – at a high level. We believe that its content will contribute to our vision and our mission.

Our Vision

“A Nation Where Hockey Matters”

What do we mean when we say...

For the purposes of clarification, we have explained some of the terms we refer to throughout the code:

TERM	DEFINITION
The Hockey Family	This means everyone involved in the sport of hockey at all levels of the game. It includes all individuals, affiliated bodies, clubs, associations and other organisations involved in any capacity in the game of hockey – whether or not they are members of EH. For the avoidance of doubt, this includes all players and anyone working within hockey (in a paid or voluntary capacity or whether they are an employee or are self-employed or working on any other basis). It includes all coaches, umpires, referees and other officials.
Conflicts and declarations of interest	If you have several interests, you are advised to declare such interests when accepting appointments. You should then conduct yourself professionally, never allowing such interests to cause a conflict in the role in hand.
Young People	There are many references to young people within this document and we define young people as persons under the age of 18. It is important to remember that while some of the codes give guidance for activity that is exclusively for young people, most senior hockey teams also include young people.
Suitably insured	EH provides guidance on suitable insurance for different individuals and groups as referenced in this document. This information is available on the EH website www.englishockey.co.uk
Expected minimum standards of behaviour and conduct	The examples given in each code of behaviour are not exhaustive but are examples of behaviour that is or is not acceptable.
Code of Ethics and Behaviour	The document that sets out the philosophy and expected levels of behaviour for everyone involved in hockey
Regulations	The sets of rules that are used to deal with breaches of the Code of Ethics and Behaviour. There are four different types of Regulations, the one used, depends on the nature of the breach. Further details are outlined in Section 4.

How to use the Code of Ethics and Behaviour

There is a generic element within the Code of Ethics and Behaviour which relates to everyone within the sport. If you have a voluntary or paid role, or you participate in a role which does not refer to you specifically, then the generic Code of Behaviour applies to you.

There are some specific roles within the sport for which we have provided additional guidance. You should find the specific Codes of Behaviour that relates to your roles. The Codes are shown on the contents page.

GENERIC CODE OF BEHAVIOUR

Who does this apply to?

The content of this Code of Behaviour applies to all involved with the sport of hockey in England.

In order to protect the reputation of hockey in England, the Code also applies to all those associated with EH who are involved in hockey whilst outside of England.

Expected minimum standards of behaviour and conduct

All individuals involved in hockey will, at all times:

- Respect the spirit of fair play in hockey. This is more than playing within the rules. It also incorporates the concepts of friendship, respect for others and always participating with the right spirit.
- Respect the rights, dignity and worth of others.
- Conduct themselves in a manner that takes all reasonable measures to protect their own safety and the safety of others.
- Promote the reputation of the sport and take all possible steps to prevent it from being brought into disrepute.
- Protect themselves and others involved in the game from verbal or physical abuse and threatening or intimidating behaviour.
- Never use inappropriate language or gestures.
- Abide by the EH Safeguarding and Protecting Young People in Hockey Policy and Procedures and Good Practice Guidelines.
- Abide by the EH Equality Policy.
- Abide by the EH Anti-doping Rules.
- Take personal responsibility to ensure that they are suitably insured for their activities. ■

- Take personal responsibility to ensure that they are suitably insured for their activities. ■

Reporting procedures and dealing with breaches

It is important that unacceptable behaviour is dealt with quickly and appropriately. Therefore it is essential that people know where to go if they want to report a concern or incident.

Clubs and associations should use their own procedures to resolve straightforward issues locally and informally if at all possible.

EH already has a number of ways in which poor behaviour and breaches of policy are dealt with.

There are a number of regulations in place to deal with concerns or incidents involving matchday misconduct, safeguarding and protecting young people and doping offences, as detailed below:

1. Red Card and Match-Day Misconduct

In place to deal with breaches of the rules of hockey, on pitch issues and match day misconduct. Has provision for certain mandatory minimum periods of suspension. Covered by the EH Red Card and Match Day Misconduct Offences Discipline Regulations.

2. Safeguarding and Protecting Young People

In place to deal with issues relating to abuse or inappropriate behaviour in relation to under 18 year olds. Covered by the EH Safeguarding and Protecting Young People Complaints and Disciplinary Regulations

3. Anti-Doping

In place to deal with doping related offences that contravene the Anti Doping Rules. Covered by the EH Anti-doping Regulations, the EH complies with the World Anti Doping Authority (WADA) Code.

Through the development of the Code of Ethics and Behaviour an additional set of regulations has been developed to deal with any breaches that fall outside the remit of the existing regulations, but still need a route for resolution. These regulations are called Disrepute.

4. Disrepute

Any breaches of the Code of Ethics and Behaviour that are not covered in the existing three categories above are covered by the EH Disrepute Offence Regulations.

Copies of all the regulations are available on www.englishockey.co.uk/respect
.....

Everyone within the Hockey Family is bound by EH's Regulations and clubs and associations have a responsibility to make their members aware of them.

EH provides resources to help clubs and associations do this and included with this booklet are two posters to raise awareness of the Code of Ethics and Behaviour – one aimed at adults and one aimed at young people.
